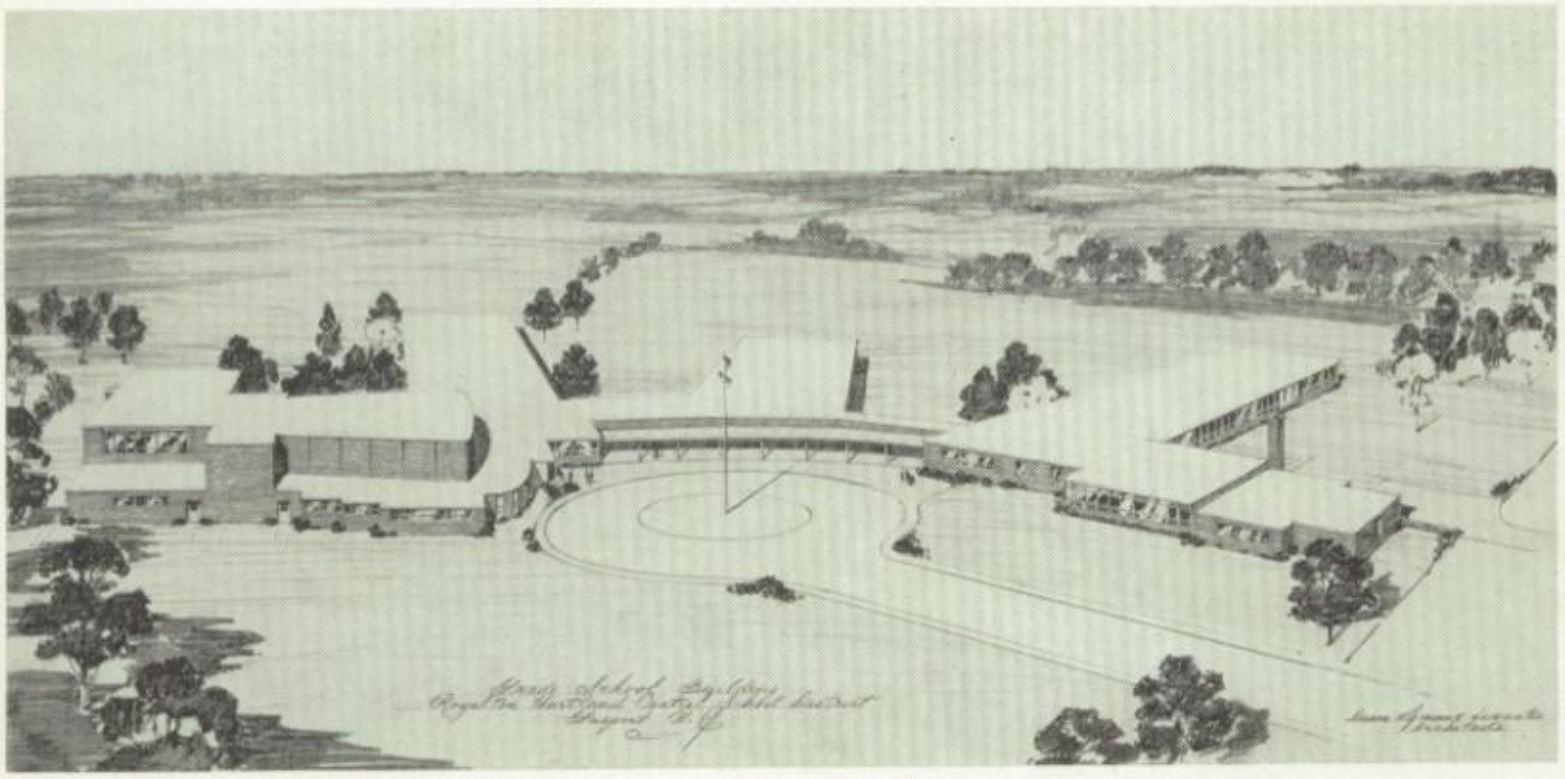
SCOPE

GASPORT BUILDING



NEW
BUILDING

This year the residents of the Royalton-Hartland school district voted to erect a nineteen classroom building in Middleport and a twenty-five classroom building in Gasport for children in grades kindergarten through six. This is going to be very beneficial for the high school students, too, by relieving the crowded facilities and providing adequate room for the high school program. Every student in the Royalton-Hartland Central School wishes to take this opportunity to express his gratitude and appreciation to the voters of the district who made this possible. We students award you voters an Olympic gold medal for your fine support.

FOREWORD

"I declare open the Olympiad Games of 1956, celebrating the sixteenth Olympiad of the modern era." With these words the athletic festival began its great show of consistency and skill, providing a righteous challenge without discrimination against any country or person. In participating in the Games, Olympians discover within themselves a new secret strength, the ability of cooperation and honest competition with other nations, despite national and political differences.

The students at RHCS are also learning to live together in harmony without the prejudices that are overtaking our world today. It is the principle of common values, not differences, that leads an individual to flourishing success. The students are striving to develop their personalities for they know that a man wins only by improving himself.

There is a similarity also between the Olympics and RHCS in that they both inspire their charges to lead a singularly well-disciplined life and answer every setback with harder training. The instigation of our choice of the Olympics as the theme of our 1957 SCOPE is the underlying purpose of both the Games and RHCS, to strengthen the bondage of citizen to citizen and nation to nation.

DEDICATION

To you, the coaches of RHCS sports, the Staff takes much pride in presenting this, the 1957 edition of SCOPE. We can never fully express our appreciation for your loyal and patient service to us. The contributions you have given us in physical education and athletic training alone merit our indebtedness and gratitude. You have taught us that no citizen has any right to be an amateur in the matter of physical training. It is his duty as a citizen to keep himself in good condition, ready to serve his country.

We honor you for the time and effort you have unselfishly spent in building up our sports teams. Not only have you helped us increase our athletic skills, but through you we have learned to be good sportsmen.

Athletic ability is not enough. You have taught us that mental discipline and self-control are what make superior individuals. In order to flourish, life calls for a combination of skills: strength, patience, endurance and, most of all, a strong personality. We wish to extend our thanks for this important lesson that you have so graciously given us. We are honored to dedicate SCOPE to you, our coaches.

FACULTY

In the same manner as the Olympic Committee and game officials lead the parade opening the contests, the faculty leads the students opening the door to their future.

F. KARL FROHLICH, District Superintendent

BOARD OF EDUCATION

The responsibility for the success of the Olympics depends upon the Olympic Organizing Committee which directs the planning and preparation for the Olympic Games. Similarly, the smooth operation of our school rests on the Board of Education which sets our policy, prescribes the courses of study for students and appoints personnel.

The Board of Education meets every month on the first Monday and often holds special meetings. Members are elected for a term of three years by the voters to carry out the wishes of the people of the district. Many hours are spent by these people studying and working on the problems of students and parents relating to the school and community.

This year the Board expended much time and effort in preparing a building program and presenting it to many community organizations. They were rewarded by approval of the proposal by the voters. In deepest appreciation, we, the students of RHCS, salute you for the fine work you have done for us.

Officials for the Olympics lead and direct the parade as the RHCS faculty guides the students in their program of education. An important group in the faculty is the Teachers Association which carries on many special functions, such as: unifying teaching methods, sending a delegate to the House of Delegates, and improving communication between taxpayers and teachers. Their social activities consisted of a fall picnic, a Christmas party, a spring banquet, and a special meeting with Mr. Howard Goold from the Retirement System as speaker. During American Education Week, they held a reception in honor of Mr. John Fahy, our new assistant principal. We thank you, well-deserving officials of RHCS.

SENIOR CLASS

When the winners of the Olympics stood on the platform to watch the flag of their country raised as they received their gold medals, they could not have been a bit more thrilled than the seniors as they are presented their diplomas. The gold medal represents the cherished goal of the Olympics as the diploma is the accomplished aim of the seniors at RHCS.

In the seventh and eighth grades, they, like the contestants for the Olympics, decided which course to study to best train them for their adulthood.

In their Freshman year, they sponsored two dances and received honorable mention in the Interclass Sing. During their Sophomore year they sold taffy and captured second place in the Interclass Sing. They were very proud of one of their fellow students who won first prize in the current events test.

All these events have been memorable, but the most outstanding and most satisfying is commencement — the goal worked for all through their twelve years of school. Now they have become the winners and are eligible for the Olympics of Life.

Excitement reigned at the pool as the Olympic team winners were announced. Such happiness is characteristic of our Jolly Juniors. Their trial run started with the successful "Fall Frolic." In October, stationery was the cry of all Junior Class members as they launched their drive. December was the setting for ordering their cherished class rings. In the spring they presented the Junior Play. To climax this busy year, they held the Farewell Ball for the Senior Class of 1957. The Juniors, who are striving toward their goal of graduation in 1958, are working hard to earn a class trip to New York City in their Senior year.

Just as there were tryouts for the Olympics in various nations to determine who should be the finalists, so the members of the Sophomore Class have been trying out to determine the field in which each member should major. A poll of the class members disclosed that seventeen are majoring in language, twenty-one in mathematics, thirty-four in science, two in art, nineteen in business, two in homemaking, and fourteen in industrial arts. Fifty-eight members participate in clubs; thirty have been honor students since seventh grade. Thus each sophomore aspires to be a gold medalist in his chosen career.

How brightly burned the torch, the symbol of the Olympic Games, in 1956! It was the first to flame south of the equator. It traveled the farthest and faced its severest test. The torch compares with the Freshman class members as this is their first year to choose the course to be followed throughout high school. This, too, is a severe test because this choice affects their future. In November the auditorium, attired in blue and silver, was the scene of their dance, "Rhapsody in Blue." In late spring the class had a baked food sale.

"Clean up the fields and rake the high jump pit; get ready for the next event," ordered the superintendent of grounds at Olympic Stadium. So the busy eighth graders are preparing for their big event of selecting courses which will provide the background for their chosen careers. They cooperated in producing an amateur show as an assembly program. Other students competed in the Buffalo Evening News Spelling Contest and the Junior High Speaking Contest. By selling seeds in the spring, the eighth graders hope to increase their treasury. The climax of the year's activities will be a class trip this spring.

"Get your Olympic souvenir programs here! Only fifty cents!" is the energetic shout heard as you enter the arena. The enthusiastic seventh graders compare with the vigorous Olympic program sellers. They have started their high school climb at RHCS and are active in many fields. They held a story-telling contest during Book Week. Many participated in the Spelling Bee and the Junior High Speaking Contest. They organized three clubs: the Junior Historical Society, the Reading Club, and the Stamp Club. They also sponsored the Sixth Grade Orientation Day which familiarizes sixth graders with the Junior High School routine.

ELEMENTARY GRADES

"Here, here, sign my program, too, please," said the children as they ran after the Olympic contestants seeking autographs. With just as much enthusiasm, the elementary students work for the day they will enter high school. These contestants in sports have practiced for many years to perfect their athletic ability. To gain success in any skill, much practice is necessary.

In the kindergartens many skills such as playing in rhythm band, singing, speaking and skipping are practiced. In the first grade the black marks on the page come alive with meaning and children begin to read and write. The mystery of spelling is explored in the second grade. Words are analyzed and sounds of letters are learned. In the third grade the addition and subtraction facts must be mastered. The next hurdle to be jumped is the mastery of the multiplication and division facts in the fourth grade.

The techniques of reading not only the lines but between and beyond the lines are practiced in the fifth and sixth grades. These require the free and easy use of various kinds of reference materials. It is here that the skills learned in lower grades are refined and pupils learn to work independently and with self-direction. Thus the elementary school gives each student a background of skills essential to his success in high school and in life.

Using the slide in their playtime period is fun and good exercise for these kindergarten children

Miss Mahar points out the difference between latitude and longitude to several of her sixth grade pupils

During the year students get a chance to originate and display a bulletin board for their grade rooms

Mrs. Burkhart, fourth grade teacher, listens to a group of her students to learn their progress in reading

Mrs. Flatt is teaching fifth grade students to read music and express themselves by use of the song flute

Mrs. Goodman, school nurse, gives each student an audiometer test yearly as she does here for Patricia Skomski

These kindergartners pose proudly with their Christmas tree and the gifts which they brought to exchange

A reading group of fourth grade students is studying with the help of Miss Palisano, a student teacher

To practice the spirit of giving, these sixth graders exchanged gifts at a Christmas party

CURRICULUM

The training period which prepares the Olympic entrants for competition in the contest compares with the daily preparation in the program of the RHCS students.

Students report to their homeroom each morning for attendance which is followed by the Pledge of Allegiance

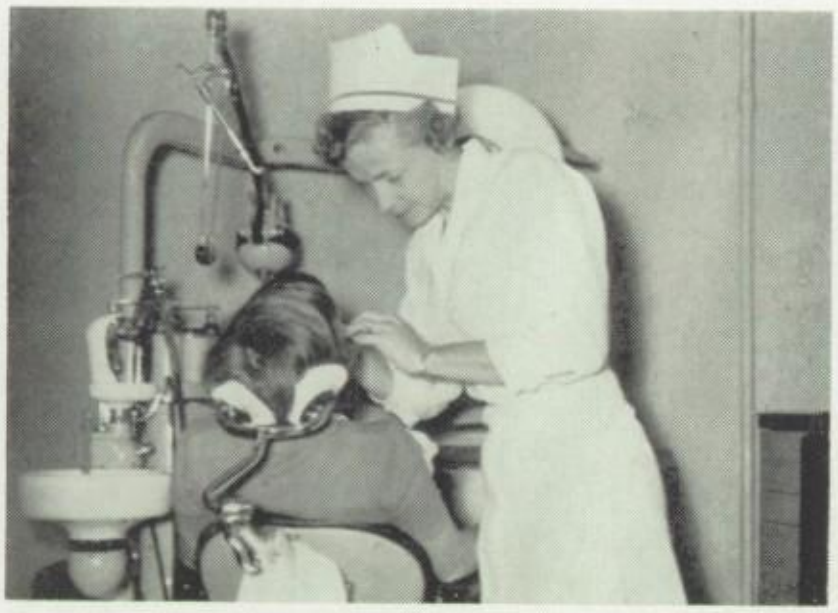
Following the pledge to the flag, the daily prayer is said in all homerooms before students pass to their first class

Mr. Uschold, Student Counselor, is helping Frances Hyde check her units to determine the points earned toward graduation

Rosemarie Tremblay and Marcia MacDonald plan their schedules for the courses they have chosen to take in the coming year

To Sylvia Schlinger, Sylvia Swick and Carol Wollenberg, the day report cards are issued is a time for discussing their progress

As part of an air raid drill, these girls are demonstrating the procedure to be followed in case of an attack



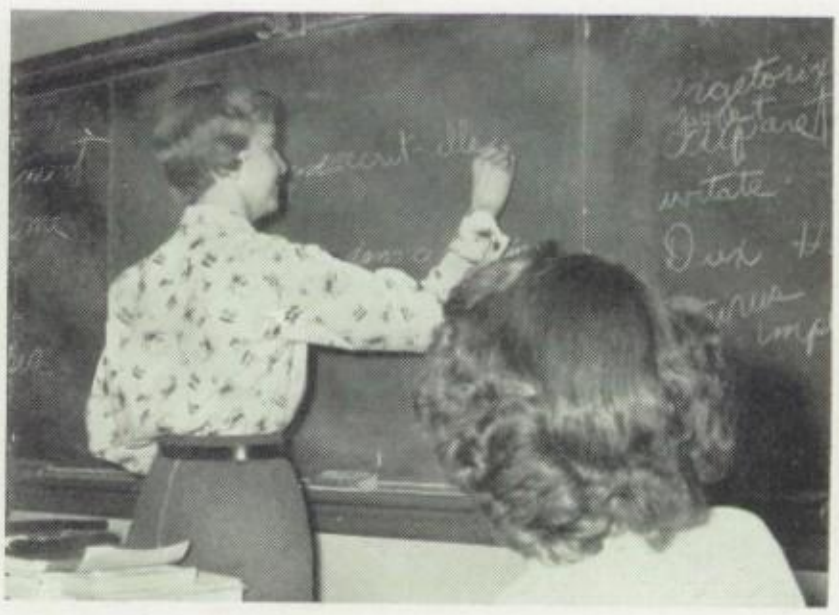
Miss Andress, Dental Hygienist, annually cleans and checks each student's teeth as she is doing for this girl

Dr. Williams gives JoAnn Szell the annual physical examination while Mrs. Goodman, the school nurse, records the results

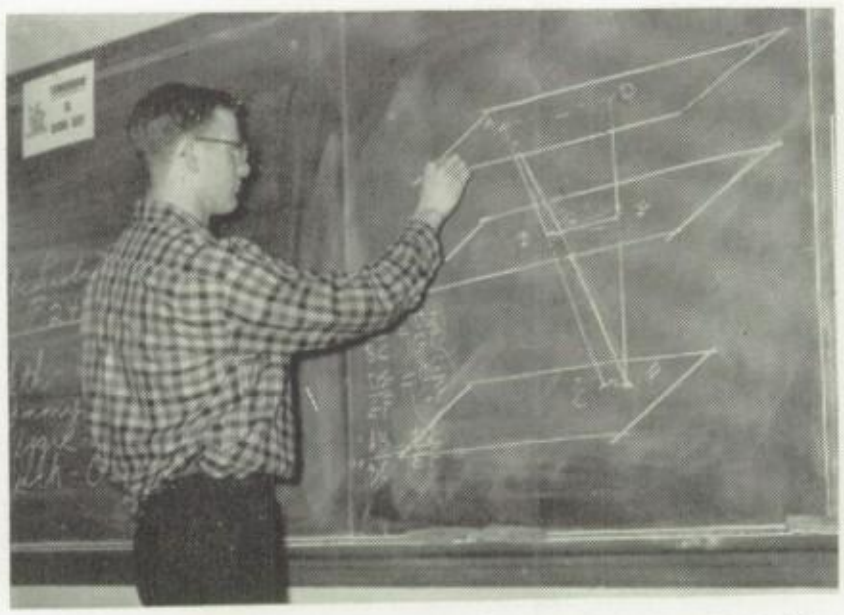
As one of the many projects undertaken in Mr. Cooper's art class, Edward Schultz is painting a scene in oil

Mr. Cavers, Band Director, is training a group of music students who hope to attain positions in the Senior Band

Mrs. Bunnell helps Jane Silsby and Karin Glantz work with the reference books provided by the library for students' use



While Barbara Walker watches her, Nancy Kayner, a language student, practices writing a sentence in Mrs. Lent's French class



As part of his solid geometry assignment, James Walker illustrates the proper way to construct a diagram

Mr. Annable and his science students find microorganisms very interesting in this experiment in biology class

Gerald Pechuman and William Goddard display one of the English projects they have done this year in Mrs. Holahan's class

In the unit on religion in social studies, Mary Lou Latta, Mary Nicolia and Gwendolyn Seeloff discuss religious prejudices

Instruction is given by the office secretary, Miss Wienke, to one of the secretarial practice students, Barbara Shorten

Mrs. McKinney's Shorthand II and Transcription students take dictation directly on the typewriter as well as in shorthand

Students in Mr. Sanford's mechanical drawing class draw plates in the new room which was made out of a corridor

Nancy Smith and Carol Ewing, homemaking students, enjoy refinishing a door which is a project in the decorating unit

David Schultz helps Edwin O'Lear, who made this boat in shop class, put the finishing touches on his craft

Study hall is a place to work and these students in the cafeteria use their time well to get their homework done

As part of the gymnastic schedule in Mrs. Lloyd's physical education class, Judy Dysinger is learning co-ordination and balance

Knowing that daily exercise is a way to build strong muscles, this student chins himself as Coach Coates supervises

Fred Ackerson and Edward Wojtkowski gain experience in the repairing of tools in one of Mr. Bannister's agricultural classes

To determine their scholastic ability, Herbert Spielberger, Charles Allport and James Gow take the Iowa Achievement Tests with other students

At one of the assemblies which featured a steeple jack, Herbert Corthoff learns the technique used in this type of climbing

During activity periods these seniors are receiving help in reviewing past work in preparation for the scholarship exams in January

Mr. Pacini is teaching his driver training class about what is "under the hood", which is something every driver should know

At the conclusion of a busy day at school, students anxiously wait to board homeward-bound busses

"Step aside! Let the press through!" Just as newspaper reporters rush to the scene of the popular sports events in the Olympics, Press Clubbers scurry here and there getting ready to publish SCOPE and writing articles for newspapers. This year members revised their constitution, allowing only those earning ten credits before November to be in the Press Club picture and canceling membership after three illegal absences. At monthly meetings they saw colored slides taken by a member, watched movies, heard speakers, studied news writing and had a Christmas party. A group went to Albion to see SCOPE printed and the whole club enjoyed a field trip to Buffalo.

Flash! Click! The press photographers are in action again. This time they are doing a fine job of covering the Olympic Games. Just as professional cameramen take pictures of the international sporting events, the RHCS Photography Club members, under the advisership of Mr. Lyman Barry, are snapping pictures of activities in our Alma Mater. Besides this, the senior members of the organization show their younger associates the rudiments of developing and printing. Other events of the year consisted of listening to a speaker from Eastman Kodak and taking all the action shots for SCOPE. This club is only in its second year of existence, but we are sure it will prove a fine asset to RHCS.

The two years of preparation spent in constructing Olympic Village compares to Stagecraft Club's building the sets for RHCS productions. At regular monthly meetings, under the direction of Mr. James Cooper, they worked industriously on the setting for "Girl Crazy," the senior play; and later in the spring, they helped with the scenery for the Junior play, "Everybody's Crazy." They also arranged displays that brightened our school and made it more attractive. To conclude this year of fun, hard work, and cooperation, they combined with the art classes and Art Kraft Klub for a field trip.

"Winners report to Room 10 to be measured for your Olympic uniforms," was the announcement heard after each race at the trials. The twelve members of the Future Homemakers at RHCS are learning to sew so that perhaps some day they will be prepared to make these colorful uniforms. Their aim is to become better qualified to further their careers in homemaking. They went on a field trip to Cornell University where they toured the Home Economics Department. They also listened to speakers on careers in homemaking and attended District and State meetings. They challenged other FHA club members to basketball games.

Treasurer - - - - NORMA RHOADHOUSE

"Are the hotel reservations ready?" "Is the field marked?" "Are the pools in shape?" asked the coaches of the Olympic Teams. Just as coaches direct teams for the Olympics, Student Council organizes and plans the activities for the student body. The Hospitality Committee, which is new this year, escorts new students around the school and introduces them to their classmates. The Honor Society and the Student Council are attempting to raise enough money to sponsor a foreign student for the school year of 1957-1958. A banking system, in cooperation with the Marine Trust Company, has been established for the whole school. The arrangements for a County Conference at Lewiston-Porter were made. The year ended with the scheduling of assemblies and extra-curricular activities for next year.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

President - - - THOMAS SHEPHEARD
Vice-President - - - - CAROLE LASAL
Secretary - - - - - JOYCE BORDWELL
Treasurer - - - - - PAMELA CRAFTS

As Olympic contestants begin their race, assistants have to stand by to render help if needed just as our Junior Red Cross stands ready to help those in need. The council, under the advisership of Miss Margaret Wild, held a dance and sponsored a basketball game to raise money to buy games, books, dental supplies and school equipment to fill the Chest which they sent to children overseas. The organization, a subsidiary of the Lockport Chapter, contributes nut cups, candy, checkerboards, cribbage boards and cookies to hospitals in this district. Representatives attend the area chapter meetings monthly. The March of Dimes, the Red Cross Enrollment Drive, and the Good Will Drive are among the important projects the Junior Red Cross, an outstanding service organization, has supported.

FUTURE NURSES CLUB

President - - - - - - KRISTI WEBSTER
Vice-President - - FRANCES DONAHUE
Cor. Secretary - - - MILDRED PLUMP
Secretary-Treasurer - CYNTHIA GRINNELL

Bumps and bruises are cared for at the Olympics by first aid workers who are standing by as the Future Nurses are at RHCS. They have acquired valuable experience and knowledge while assisting in the health room, aiding in clinics and various nursing homes. They went on a field trip to Strong Memorial Hospital where they observed nursing techniques. They have waged a campaign during the year to promote polio shots to prevent the spread of the disease. The club met with other nursing organizations to exchange ideas and to become acquainted with their members. Speakers enlightened the members about the different types of nursing. The organization's purpose, to present an idea of opportunities offered in the field of nursing, was adequately followed throughout the year.

FIREWARDENS

Fire Chief - - - WILLIAM LEIBRING
Ass't Fire Chief - THOMAS SHEPHEARD

"May I see your ticket, please? Row E, seat 6, right this way," said the usher at the Olympics. Just as these ushers direct people and traffic so the RHCS firewardens maintain orderliness and tranquility in our school. They do an outstanding job directing students to and from assemblies and guiding them from the building during fire drills. The boys continuously test all fire-fighting apparatus to be sure it is in working condition. This year the firewardens have the added responsibility of directing all Civil Defense air raid drills. Freshmen and Sophomores elect four wardens annually, while Juniors and Seniors elect five. Under the capable supervision of Mr. Robert Querns and Mr. David Sanford, the RHCS firewardens have become better young men and are highly respected by all the students.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

President - - - Allan Whittemore
Vice-President - - William Leibring
Secretary - - - - - - Elva Newman
Treasurer - - - - George Holahan
Publicity Chairman - Carol Annable

Just as the Torch of Olympia is lighted to signify the opening of the Olympics, so the Torch of Learning was lighted last year in RHCS. The National Honor Society was inaugurated in an assembly by the members of the Albion chapter. Because the picture had to be taken so early in the year the new members were not in it as they had not yet been selected. Under the advisership of Mrs. Virginia Everett, the members strive to maintain an average of eighty-five per cent throughout the year. Qualities necessary for membership are leadership, character, service, and scholarship. Membership in the society, a high honor, is determined by a faculty committee. We hope that this Torch of Learning will burn brightly forever.

ART KRAFT KLUB

President - - - - - - JEANNE BAILEY
Vice-President - - - - - JAMES AIKEN
Secretary - - - FLORENCE CZELUSTA
Treasurer - - - - - - BARBARA SHAW

After each race in the Olympics, the names of the winners and their scores are printed on a board for the spectators to read just as Art Kraft Klub, under the direction of Mr. James Cooper, makes posters to inform the public of school activities. They meet once a month to combine their talents in projects. They work together to design and create the division pages of the SCOPE. They assist the members of other organizations to plan and construct stage sets for school plays and operettas. Many posters on the bulletin boards in the halls are made by these talented artists. At the end of the year they take a trip to some art gallery or point of interest. We honor Art Kraft Klub for enhancing the appearance of our school.

"Bonne chance, mes amis!" said the French Olympic contestant. "Good luck, my friends!" said the interpreter. RHCS French Club members are proud of the fact that the revival of the Olympic Games in 1896 was largely due to the efforts of the French educator, Baron Pierre de Coubertin, who claimed that better international understanding and goodwill could be accomplished by the resumption of the Olympics on a world-wide basis. French Club members have the opportunity to study the language, life, customs, and culture of France. In their social hours, they sing French songs, tell fortunes, listen to French records, and play games like Bingo and Scrabble. They also read a French magazine, "Match," which is similar to American pictorial magazines.

"Sh . . . . ! Listen to that sports broadcast. It's giving the results of the 1956 Olympic Games." Radio and television announcers go through a training period similar to that of the RHCS Radio Club. Under the advisership of Mr. David Sanford, the Radio Club members are working for their amateur licenses and the establishment of an amateur radio station, just as Olympic contestants must maintain their amateur standing. Visits to a television plant and a power plant helped members become better acquainted with different phases of electronics and to realize the ways in which power is produced. At monthly meetings, they practiced the Morse code and held classes in electronics. This is the first year that such classes in electronics have been held in RHCS. This should tend to increase interest in club membership.

SCIENCE CLUB

President - - - - - Beth Le Valley
Vice-President - - Sarah Monthony
Secretary-Treasurer - Suzanne Schilling

Long before the torch was lighted for the opening of the first Olympics, men were engaged in research and experimentation to find the best equipment for the contests. In RHCS an eager group of budding scientists devote their time to develop their resources in order to succeed in the competition they will meet in this field. The members take nature hikes, learning to identify and have a better understanding of nature. The opportunity is presented to them to further their interests in physics, chemistry, and biology. This is the first year of the club's establishment. All students in grades seven through twelve are eligible to join. The main object of the club is to arouse scientific interest throughout the student body and help all students to fulfill their ambitions in science.

VARSITY CLUB

President - - - - WILLIAM LEIBRING
Vice-President - - - DORSON WILSON
Secretary - - - ALLAN WHITTEMORE
Treasurer - - - - GEORGE HOLAHAN

Top sports participants from each country make up the Olympic teams just as the lettermen from RHCS compose the Varsity Club. To become a member of this Club a man must have earned a varsity letter in any sport and be accepted by the club. The purpose of the Olympics is to promote better international relations and mutual understanding. This corresponds to the aim of Varsity Club — to encourage a high standard of integrity and sportsmanship and to nurture a spirit of cooperation and understanding in all phases of athletics. Members acted as ushers at basketball games, thereby spreading good sportsmanship among the student body. They held dances after each basketball game and elected a king and queen of sports. A gold medal goes to this club for a job well done.

The trumpets are sounded; the Olympic flag is slowly raised; and pigeons, emblematic of doves of peace, are released at the opening of the Olympics. Could these pigeons have been raised by FFA? The aim of the FFA is to develop agricultural leadership, cooperation, citizenship and to encourage members in the development of individual farming programs. Members, under the guidance of Mr. LeRoy Bannister, gain experience in public discussion and parliamentary procedure. They sponsored the Harvest Show, a Parent and Son Banquet and a basketball team. The Chapter holds regular monthly meetings and a social night for members. The FFA boys are building for a future of farming.

"Get your tickets for the Olympic Games at the Corner Shop!" yelled the crier as he ran from country to country, carrying the traditional Olympic torch. Our school store handles supplies of use to every student. The primary purpose of the store is to sell school supplies to bus students who would otherwise be unable to reach stores to secure them. We also find on the shelves articles other than school supplies, such as the handiwork of the Seventh and Eighth grade art students. As an aid to the teaching staff, the store obtained Regents review books and other extras. What year did basketball become an integral part of the Olympic Program? The librarian at the Helms Athletic Foundation Research Library aided an Olympic contestant in finding this information just as library club members, under the leadership of Mrs. Doris Bunnell, give friendly assistance in the library at RHCS. Besides assisting students, members dust books and arrange them on the shelves. They process new books, prepare overdue notices and mend books. Taking charge of the library desk before and after school and during free periods is another duty. The organization entertained the Medina Library Club at a tea where they exchanged ideas. They also prepare attractive bulletin boards and displays. For this work members earn credits toward a pin.

"Say, that movie on the Olympics was good! You know we couldn't have seen that if the Audio-Visual Club boys hadn't operated the projector for us." Hardly a day goes by but what this club shows at least one movie for classroom instruction or an extracurricular activity. Members also are available to operate the machines for community organizations. The AV Club, led by Mr. Charles Kane, meets twice monthly during the activity period. At meetings, they learn about the latest methods in audio-visual aids and visual classroom education. Older members train Eighth grade cadets to prepare them to be future film projector operators. Just as an Olympic star must have endless training, these boys must continually practice audio-visual skills in order to serve their school and community.

FUTURE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

President - - - Carol Wollenberg
Vice-President - - Constance Ewing
Secretary - - - Norma Rhoadhouse
Treasurer - - - - - Barbara Shaw

"Report for practice at eight in the morning," said an Olympic coach, who was training his team for the big event. So the Future Teachers Association is preparing its members for a teaching career. At their semi-monthly meetings they worked on the picture file, saw movies, and heard talks on college life and scholarship opportunities. The members gained valuable experience and earned credits for activity pins by helping different teachers. They observed Teachers Recognition Day by spending that day with the teacher with whom they had worked. They attended the annual convention at Brockport State Teachers College and will climax their activities with a picnic in June.

"Judges ready; timers, clear your watches; swimmers, take your mark," call the announcers at the Olympics. Dramatic Club trains RHCS students in public speaking as these Olympic announcers have been trained. They applied make-up for the Junior and Senior Plays and staged the one-act play, "Hilly-Billy House," for an assembly program. At meetings, members learned the art of stage make-up, studied play production and current stage plays, and listened to speakers on good grooming and photography. The club also produced a high school talent show and climaxed the year's activities with a field trip to a dramatic production and a picnic.

JUNIOR HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The first public announcement concerning the revival of the Olympic Games appeared at the Sorbonne in Paris in 1892. This interesting fact and many more historical topics have been discussed by the RHCS Historical Club. Besides attending regular club meetings, the members enjoyed their trip to the Lockport Museum where they observed relics of the early days of Niagara County. The Spring Convention is always a high-light of the year.

READING CLUB

When the Olympic contestants have leisure time, they turn to their favorite authors to provide them with entertainment and relaxation, for they have learned that there are many joys and benefits to be derived from reading. In much the same way, the members of the RHCS Reading Club are finding reading a valuable use of spare time. They are happy to have a social organization which offers them an opportunity to become better readers.

STAMP CLUB

"Oh, look at the stamp on this letter I just received postmarked Melbourne, Australia! Do you have a stamp commemorating the Olympic Games yet?" Members of the Stamp Club have had many interesting discussions similar to this during the year. Their meetings have been enlivened by the exchange of stamps and a study of their value. Many of the seventh graders, aided by their more experienced classmates, have begun new collections this year.

INSTRUMENTAL AND VOCAL MUSIC

Listen to the strains of the Australian national anthem during the opening ceremony of the Olympics! With music, too, the RHCS band opens and closes each assembly by accompanying our student body as they sing our national anthem and the Alma Mater.

The instrumental music consists of the Junior Band and Senior Band, under the direction of Mr. Robert Cavers. The Senior Band meets three times a week to prepare themselves for concerts, sectionals, and festivals. In the fall they participated in sectionals at Medina and Lockport. A marching band has added much school spirit at football games. Individual lessons for band members have contributed greatly to the quality of their performance as a group. Future plans include the organization of a student dance band to play at school dances.

The vocal organizations of RHCS, directed by Mrs. Miriam Flatt, are Junior Chorus, Ninth Grade Chorus and Mixed Chorus. This year representatives from Mixed Chorus attended the sectionals held at Medina. The combined choruses presented a Christmas concert featuring "Christmas Roundelay," the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah, and the Fred Waring arrangement of "The Night Before Christmas." In February the annual operetta was staged. In the spring chorus members presented another concert, entered the NYSSMA competition at Lockport and participated in the County Chorus at Starpoint. The final function of a busy year was a trip to a concert in Rochester. The bands and the choral groups are an indispensable part of school life at RHCS.

Basketball is probably the only game in Olympic competition that has strictly American roots and differs from most sports in that it was deliberately "invented". Like the teams in the Olympics the Roy-Hart Rams earned a high-scoring record this season. Because of their unwavering aggressiveness and good sportsmanship they were able to outdo Barker in the race for third place in the Niagara-Orleans League. Although they lost the Class B - Section V play-off game with North Collins, the quintet never once failed to give their opponents a hard fight. Team spirit as shown by the Rams is the initial force that keeps the Olympic torch burning brightly.

Soccer is the most universally popular sport on the Olympic agenda, but football takes that spot on the RHCS sports program. Coach Pacini was proud of his football team as every member gave an excellent account of himself throughout the season. Much of the success the players had lay in their fine spirit, cooperation, determination, and the will to win. The team was spurred on by the marching band and student support. This year was the "grand finale" for Leibring, Wilson, Jim Walker, Whittemore, and Lercher. Teamwork displayed by the Rams sets an example for future squads to follow.

Although baseball was not included in the agenda for the Olympics at Melbourne, Australia, we Americans would like to see the sport of baseball spread throughout the world and become one of the Olympic games in the future. The Roy-Hart team established groundwork last year that should spark the teams of the next few years. Our team lost the right to play in the Sectional Play-offs, for the first time in five years. This year the Niagara-Orleans League will have a ten-game schedule with an eastern and western division. We expect bigger and better things in baseball this season!

TRACK

"Let the runners put their feet to the line," bellowed the starter at the Olympic games as the contestants got ready for the 200-meter dash. Coach Bill Annable smiled as he helped build his RHCS track team members for a future Olympiad. They worked on disc-throwing, high jumps and speed in running. The team won every mile event, and participated in the Niagara-Orleans meet. RHCS is striving to get track established on a more solid basis so that we can soon have a track of our own and can give this sport more emphasis.

CROSS COUNTRY

Here comes the last relay runner bringing the Olympic torch into the stadium, just as the RHCS Cross Country team runs across the fields to a victory for Roy-Hart. The Cross Country team, under the direction of Mr. David March, won four meets and lost two. In their two defeats, they were the second to finish out of the four teams in the quadrangular. They won the Niagara-Orleans league trophy for the second straight year and were the Section 6, Class B Champions for the first time in history. Congratulations to the team for its outstanding work this year!

CHEERLEADERS

"We swear that we will take part in the Olympic Games in fair competition, respecting the regulations which govern them and with the desire to participate in the true spirit of sportsmanship, for the honor of our country and for the glory of sport" is the official Olympic Oath, taken by each contestant. Just as the Olympic contenders abide by the provisions of this oath, so RHCS Cheerleaders follow it by respecting school regulations and promoting good sportsmanship. The JV group lead cheers at Junior Varsity games and the Varsity for Varsity games. Sixty-six hours of practicing a year makes their precision and accuracy in performance outstanding. The girls attended an annual cheerleading clinic with the other schools in our league. Let's applaud this group for a job well done!
